This Sunday is the day that afternoon tea is more popular than any other, the day that families swarm to restaurants for a roast without the washing up, and the day that sales of flowers goes through the roof. Whether you want to treat your mother in a traditional way or slightly less traditional (bottomless brunch, we're looking at you), here is your ultimate guide to celebrating Mothering Sunday in London...

Ceru

This will be the first Mother's Day for new South Kensington restaurant Ceru, who opened at the end of 2016. They are putting a Levantine twist on the traditional afternoon tea with Turkish brioche-style bread, spiced fillings and sweet treats like pistachio baklava and carrot and cardamom cupcakes. Available from Saturday 25th March

The Botanist Broadgate Circle

Introduce your mother to the world of the bottomless brunch at The Botanist Broadgate Circle. Live music will accompany guests enjoying a two or three course brunch with the option to add bottomless prosecco, Bloody Marys, Mimosa's or wine.

Aviary

Making Mother's Day a family affair, Aviary is hosting The Family Roast for Four where the entire family can enjoy a roast whole Suffolk chicken, ½ kg rump of retired Cumbrian dairy cow and a ½ kg slab of slow roast Tamworth pork belly. Traditional roast trimmings of Yorkshire puddings, duck fat roast potatoes, carrots, greens, cauliflower cheese and gravy will be served to complete the meal.

Sea Containers

Round up the whole family and it's not only your mother who will be pleased. When you order two or more courses at Sea Containers in a party of four or more for brunch or dinner, mothers get their meal on the house so your wallet will be pleased too. Oh, and the views of the Thames are pretty hard to beat.

Craft London

Craft London are celebrating the seasonality of Mother's Day by celebrating the best spring produce in their menus. Enjoy dishes like wood-fired Devon lamb and diver scallop with baby shrimp, sea vegetables and celeriac broth.

The Bloomsbury

The Bloomsbury are holding floral master classes this Mother's Day, thanks to local florist, Ochidya London Flower Shop. Learn how to create the ultimate bouquet as you tuck into afternoon tea bites and sip Champagne.
